Profile

Throughout my studies, I developed a strong interest in clinical scientific research, with a particular focus on sustainable and cutting-edge treatments for various health conditions. The entire process—from developing (non)conventional drugs to bringing them to market—fascinates me. This wide range of interests motivates me to pursue a dynamic role in healthcare, which I genuinely aspire to fulfill.

In my free time, I enjoy weekends with family, friends and sports, while during the week I live in Antwerp with my boyfriend. Furthermore, I work regularly at Les Soeurs, where I can channel my creative side. Colleagues describe me as enthusiastic, organized, social and naturally curious—qualities that I believe make me well-suited for a career as a bridge between scientific research and strategic communication.
